The groundbreaking agreement will create exciting educational and developmental opportunities for young curators, artists, art practitioners, and museologists

Toronto, Canada – January 10, 2024 – The United Arab Emirates Ministry of Culture and the Aga Khan Museum announce a formal collaboration emanating from the Al-Burda Grant Programme, to advance their shared and individual missions, priorities, and strategic objectives. Effective from December 19, 2023, to December 18, 2026, the Memorandum of Understanding will enrich educational and artistic initiatives for young professionals, intellectuals, art practitioners, and students through collaboration, and empower opportunities for learning and artistic creativity through training and mentorship.

Fuelled by a shared mandate of pluralism, inclusivity, and diversity, the collaboration aims to present a diverse range of offerings at museums and cultural institutions in the United Arab Emirates and the Aga Khan Museum in Toronto for young curators, artists, art practitioners, and museologists.

The innovative opportunities will include: annual residencies for young, emerging art and performing art practitioners; educational opportunities, such as learning initiatives and educational workshops for Emirati high school, post-secondary students, and young professionals focused on intercultural dialogue, local museology, museum education, and Islamic art; professional internships and fellowships for young Emirati curators and museum professionals in the areas of curation, conservation, museum education, collection management, and academic research.

His Excellency Sheikh Salem bin Khalid Al Qassimi, Minister of Culture of the UAE, said, “Guided by the ambitious vision of our wise leadership, the Ministry of Culture in the United Arab Emirates is committed to creating opportunities for professionals and intellectuals across the country – to sharpen their skills, expand their knowledge, and embrace and develop their creative ideas. The Ministry has launched a myriad of initiatives and programmes to that very end, while also working to grow and strengthen our network of partnerships to drive progress towards these strategic objectives.”

“This agreement, which we are proud to be signing with the prestigious Aga Khan Museum, brings us a significant step forward in that direction, while also presenting us with a prominent platform to share our own expertise and insight into various cultural sectors with world-renowned and likeminded institutions,” H.E. Sheikh Al Qassimi added.

“This Memorandum of Understanding is built on a joint commitment to showcase the creativity and contributions of Muslim cultures and foster intercultural learning, dialogue, and capacity building through the arts,” said Dr. Ulrike Al-Khamis, Director and CEO of the Aga Khan Museum. “We are deeply honoured by the trust invested in our Museum with this partnership, and we very much look forward to working with our Emirati colleagues.”

The collaboration was celebrated at a ceremonial signing of the Memorandum of Understanding by H.E. Mubarak Al Nakhi, Undersecretary of the UAE Ministry of Culture and Dr. Ulrike Al-Khamis, Director and CEO of the Aga Khan Museum, Toronto, on the evening of December 19, 2023, at the Louvre, Abu Dhabi in the presence of H.E.
